PANEL SESSION

AGING IN THE CITY

Wednesday, 03 September 2025
16.00 - 17.30 WIB

This session will invite you to gain a deeper understanding of the mobility needs of the elderly in practicing their ability to move, especially in public spaces, and to collectively discuss the appropriate spatial implications to meet those needs. It is expected that after joining this panel, you will have a more accurate understanding of elderly mobility needs and contribute to creating urban environments that are comfortable, safe, and friendly for them.

Presented in the form of presentations, a walking session, and a post-walk discussion, this panel encourages you to understand the importance of age-friendly environments and to gain lived experiences that will enhance such understanding.

PANEL SESSION

SHE AND PUBLIC SPACES AFTER DARK

Wednesday, 03 September 2025
16.00 - 17.30 WIB

This panel invites participants to explore the experiences, narratives, and challenges of mobility at night, particularly for women. As women, daily mobility is often shaped by considerations such as: Am I safe walking through this area? Can I bring a stroller? Should I avoid wearing a headset so I won't be disturbed? along with many other seemingly minor but significant concerns.

Framed as a workshop, this panel aims to introduce methods to identify and evaluate urban mobility systems in relation to women's needs, especially at night.

WALKABILITY MAPPING: Reading the city step by step

Wednesday, 03 September 2025
18.30 - 20.00 WIB

Every street has hidden layers that shape how people experience it, from safety and comfort to identity and accessibility. In this 90-minute session, we'll use walkability mapping to uncover these layers through a simple case study. Participants will work in groups, each analyzing one "layer" of a street, then bring them together to see the bigger picture.

PANEL SESSION

THE DEATH OF PEDESTRIANS AND CYCLISTS:

The evolution from humans with legs to with machines

Rabu, 03 September 2025
18.30 - 20.00 WIB

This panel, in the form of a talk show, will explore the current state of pedestrians and cyclists in Indonesia where their numbers have been declining while motorized vehicle usage has been booming for decades. The declines in the pedestrians and cyclists were affected by several factors, such as infrastructure conditions, unsafe environment for walking and cycling, unsupportive transport and mobility policies, changes in socio-economic status, and culture
